With the help of our supporters, we were pleased to be able to give Ginny, an elderly Suffolk mare, and Bobby the Clydesdale, a permanent home when Hillside took over 'The Norfolk Shire Horse Centre' at West Runton in February 2008.

Our First Year at West Runton

In 2007, shortly after our patron, Martin Shaw, launched a Farm Appeal to raise funds to provide extra land for our rescued animals, we heard that the Norfolk Shire Horse Centre at West Runton was for sale. With over seventy acres, barns and visitor facilities it had the potential to be an ideal location for a Sanctuary. As well as being able to offer even more animals a safe permanent home, the centre, being by the sea in a tourist area, would also give us the perfect opportunity to 'speak' to so many more people about our campaigning work - helping animals caught up in the intensive factory farming industry.

So, in February 2008, with the help of our supporters' donations and legacies (and a loan to make up the shortfall), we were able to purchase the farm, along with taking on all its resident Shires. This is now, of course, known as 'Hillside Animal and Shire Horse Sanctuary'.

With just five weeks to go before Easter our staff worked extremely hard getting everything ready for our first Open Day. Unfortunately, as Easter was early this year, it snowed very heavily (pictured left) and our first open days, not surprisingly, were not well attended. However, as the weather improved we were pleased to welcome lots of new visitors as well as many long-standing supporters, several of whom have written to us with kind words of encouragement. One supporter (Mrs Gibbs of Swindon) wrote: "I have been a supporter of Hillside for about 10 years and have followed all its aims and ideals with great interest. I think the West Runton Sanctuary is ideal and think the 'education' displays and videos are really good - too many people are unaware of all the factory farming horrors and the ignorance and cruelty that pervades. I also learned a lot more myself. It was wonderful to see all the heavy horses, in addition to the other animals."

We are able to welcome visitors to our new Sanctuary on most days from Easter until the end of October (see page 2). Here they can see almost 400 animals that have already been given a home there. On Open Days the heavy horses come down from their fields to meet the visitors and at the end of the day go back to graze in pastures they share with rescued sheep and cattle. Our supporters can say hello to the animals they have adopted (except for Dennis the donkey, Felicity pig and Alice the camel who, because they receive special care, still live at Frettenham).

At West Runton we have some new adoption animals - Bobby the Clydesdale, Lucinda the pot-bellied pig, Misty and Frosty the goats and Dancer and Prancer the donkeys who were rescued from France last Christmas. On arrival Dancer was pregnant and in July gave birth to Donner who has been adored by everyone who meets her. The previous owners of the farm, Mr and Mrs Bakewell, had collected an amazing variety of farming bygones and horse drawn vehicles which they have kindly loaned to us for the interest of our visitors. On some open days Mr Bakewell comes along to give a talk and presentation to show how heavy horses were worked on the land - not all that long ago, as some people can still remember. And 'lest we forget', the museum also displays photographs with documentation showing how horses were used during the last wars.

Visitors can also meet our horses and ponies who help Riding for the Disabled by taking disabled riders for a stroll around the Sanctuary. This benefits both children and adults alike who really enjoy the experience. Our bric-a-brac stall, kindly manned by volunteers, proved to be very popular on Open Days. If you have any unwanted 'treasures in the loft' we would be glad to receive them to help raise valuable funds for our animals.

Proceeds from our Open Days have certainly helped us to maintain an excellent standard of care for our animals throughout the Summer months. However, now with so many more animals to look after, we are concerned that during the coming Winter, increased feed and bedding costs will place a higher than usual burden on our resources. If you are able to help, every pound donated will be very gratefully received and used directly for the benefit of our rescued animals. Thank you for caring.

We would like to sincerely thank everybody who donated to our 'Shelter Appeal' to provide our animals, especially our more elderly heavy horses, with adequate protection during the colder months. Here you can see the first shelter in place and, at the time of writing, others are being constructed in time for winter.

Utility Warehouse for your Household Services

I would like to thank our supporters who changed their household services (electric, gas or phone) to Utility Warehouse to help reduce their bills while raising funds for Hillside. I have personally used UW for sometime now and have been very impressed with the service they offer. However, I am always aware of conserving energy. I was brought up without central heating, and frost covering the windows in the morning was just part of life. Even now, on cold wintry mornings if it's cold indoors I just get up and put my coat on instead of the heating!

If you would like details of what Utility Warehouse can offer you, please ring them on freephone 0800 1313000. If you quote our appeal number - B13013 - our Sanctuary will receive a small ongoing donation. Wendy Valentine

We are always on call twenty four hours

At Hillside we always endeavour to answer the phone at any time during the day or night. Whilst we ask our supporters to call us for general enquiries between 9am and 9pm any day of the week, there is always somebody on hand to answer calls after those hours to assist with any emergency regarding an animal that may be in distress. If a call for help comes from another part of the country, such as the lady who phoned for assistance after a bat flew through the window into her washing up bowl, we always try to refer the caller to their nearest organisation that can help. When we receive a local call for help we are usually able to attend. Late one evening in Summer, we received a call about a swan with a hook and line dragging from his beak. We were able to catch him, bring him to the Sanctuary, remove the offending hook and safely return him to the water. When we returned later to check on him, we were pleased to see him happily swimming around in the company of his mate and family.

Hillside takes part in BBC Programme

Here you can see our founder, Wendy Valentine, by the duck pond at our West Runton Sanctuary being interviewed by the producers of the controversial programme, 'Kill It, Cook it , Eat It'. As this is to feature the issue of rearing ducks for food, she saw it as an excellent opportunity to talk about Hillside's ten-year investigation into the intensive duck-producing industry. She explained how millions of birds, usually several thousand crowded together, are forced to exist in windowless sheds with an overpowering stench of ammonia. There is absolutely no regard for their most basic need - water in which to swim. This is a far cry from the public's perception of ducks on the village pond. The programme is due to be broadcast sometime in November 2008.

A lame duck pictured on an RSPCA monitored Freedom Food farm, dragging itself around the excreta-soaked floor using its wings as crutches - a common sight in the intensive duck industry.

They just passed him by . . .

Robert lay injured beside a busy Norfolk road while motorists just passed him by. Luckily a good samaritan stopped to help him. He was brought to Hillside where he received emergency treatment and as you can see he has now recovered well. He will live out his natural days with our other rescued sheep here in the Sanctuary.

Veterinary Equipment

Our recent appeal to extend our veterinary facilities, particularly the provision of equipment for on-site colic surgery for our horses, has been well supported. We are delighted to tell you that your kind donations, along with the help of a generous grant from a private trust fund, will enable us to provide our animals with the necessary amenities.

Safe in the Sanctuary

These four calves, Neptune, Jupiter, Saturn and Mars, (right) were rescued from a dairy farm where they were due to be shot. This shameful practice, routine in the dairy industry, is because humans drink cows' milk which is intended for the calf.

All foods which contain milk, eg, cheese, chocolate, yogurt, etc, are products of the cruel practice of separating a mother from her new-born baby. Can you imagine just how distressed a cow must be, when her whole physical and mental being has been naturally prepared for looking after her offspring, only to have him permanently taken away and killed?

Rescued to be free - Neptune, Jupiter, Saturn and Mars at Hillside. Around 482,000 male dairy calves are born in the UK each year who are either killed shortly after birth or exported to continental veal farms.

Casper enjoying life at Hillside after just a few weeks of basic feed and loving care following his rescue from a life of neglect.

Here are five of six in-foal donkeys we gave sanctuary to in July. Adele (inset) was the first to produce a healthy foal, we have named Danny. At the time of writing (early October) we are still waiting for Margaret Rose, Peggy, Linda, Ann and Cassandra to give birth - more pictures in our next newsletter!

Dear RSPCA, Please call time on your unworkable Freedom Food scheme...

On almost a THIRD of the thirty Norfolk Freedom Food farms we have looked at, we have found animals being kept in such appalling conditions that they have either been the subject of a court case or high-profile television programmes. BBC Watchdog, Tonight with Trevor McDonald and C4's Dispatches have all highlighted the continual failings of the RSPCA's self-proclaimed 'most highly audited' farm animal welfare scheme. Despite its shortcomings having been so frequently documented, the Society still insists that it works well and will not consider its disbandment.

This year we were able to expose another Freedom Food farm blatantly breaching the RSPCA's regulations and in June both Channel Five and Sky News took up the story and broadcast the shocking conditions to which 'free-range' hens were subject. The programme showed birds with clear signs of suffering and neglect. Injured and dying hens were filmed alongside decomposing carcasses. (FF regulations state: Flocks must be inspected 3 times a day for sick and injured birds).

Our undercover investigator 'got chatting' to a farm worker who admitted (unwittingly on camera) that he didn't let the birds out in the mornings because the eggs would get dirty and he would have to wash them. He also divulged that the birds were overcrowded and hadn't been fed for twenty four hours as they had run out of food. Channel Five News, accompanied by our investigator, bought five of the hens. The vet who examined them explained:

"On first appearance they do look as though they're probably kept in quite crowded conditions. They've got quite considerable feather loss, ventrally, and on the back. See, even up here [indicating neck area] where there is not obvious feather loss, feathers are thinned out. As we come further down the back the feathers are clearly broken off which indicates to me that this is a traumatic problem, rather than a moulting."

And then we've got some quite severe inflammation of the perineum - it's hot to the touch and I should think it is really quite painful.

Can you see how prominent that breastbone is? It's really sticking out proud. Even though they are laying birds and not meat-producing birds, it should still have an adequate breast muscle which is wasted."

The RSPCA's statement after the June broadcast said: "The RSPCA is angry and appalled that anyone would let animals get into this state, and we have immediately suspended the farm and launched a full investigation."

Hillside's response: We filmed the farm from March to June during which time an RSPCA Freedom Food inspector had visited the site. So, why didn't he immediately suspend the farm and launch a full investigation into the conditions he couldn't have failed to see there? The Society only held an investigation after the programme.

The RSPCA added: "In rare cases individual farms or farmers can let us down, but for every animal shown on covertly-filmed video, there are millions more who've had a better life, thanks to the RSPCA's welfare standards."

Hillside's response: We don't consider nine out of thirty to be 'rare cases'. These don't include other farms where we have found the animal welfare is 'borderline' and where we have also filmed drugs and syringes left around unlocked (posing a risk to children), animals left rotting and being buried illegally. In addition to Hillside's evidence, in June, Channel Five learned of another erring Freedom Food chicken rearing unit in Somerset which they also exposed on the News.

RSPCA: "Freedom Food has more monitoring visits and inspections than any other assurance scheme in this country".

Hillside's response: How can a handful of Freedom Food inspectors properly 'monitor' 4000 farms when it is their common practice to usually give farmers advance warning of their visits? And, couldn't the fact that most Freedom Food inspectors have been previously employed in the farming industry present a conflict of interests?

RSPCA: "It is a mark of a good scheme that immediate action is taken if ever a problem arises, and that's what we have done."

Hillside's response: We've already answered that one!

The RSPCA make up all sorts of excuses when conditions on their accredited farms are exposed. They have even denied to television producers that certain offending farms are in their scheme at all - that is, until Hillside has produced filmed documentation confirming otherwise and the Society has had to own up!

If you feel that our evidence, which has shown ongoing animal suffering on RSPCA monitored farms, warrants that the Society should admit its Freedom Food scheme has unfortunately failed and that they should take steps to abolish it, please make your views known to their Chief Executive, Mark Watts, RSPCA, Wilberforce Way, Southwater, Horsham, RH13 9RS.

'Farm Animal Investigation Appeal'

Hillside has had much success in bringing awareness of the cruelty involved in today's intensive factory farming systems. The Bernard Matthews' 'turkey beaters' was one of Hillside's investigations and programmes such as ITVI's 'Tonight with Trevor McDonald', BBC's 'Watchdog' and C4's 'Dispatches' have also featured Hillside's footage. We feel that our ongoing undercover operations which expose the animal suffering behind the closed doors of the farming industry are vitally important. If you would like to contribute towards funding this work, please make a donation using the form on the back page. Thank you.
