Safe for the rest of their natural days...

Annabel and her partner, Tom, were saved from being made into pork pies and chops. Annabel was already pregnant when she arrived and has now safely given birth to nine adorable piglets. Tom has had a little 'op' so he can live safely with Annabel without expecting the pater of any more tiny trotters next year. Although we have given a home to over 100 rescued pigs, these are the first piglets to be born in the Sanctuary.

How Hillside changed my life ... John Watson

Just over two years ago something happened that not only changed the way I eat, but the way I think and feel about animals too. Not the cute and cuddly pets that we all love, but the ones that end up on our plates. Those that, as I now realise, suffer so much for our greed, behind walls that keep them far from our thoughts...

As I approached 40 and looked back on 20 years working for the Inland Revenue I knew things had to change. Living in London made my one remaining hobby, filming wildlife and nature, somewhat more difficult than it needed to be. The solution, which had seemed daunting for so many years, was actually easy - move to Norfolk!

And that's how I found myself, just over two years ago, at the Hillside Shire Horse Sanctuary, with my video camera in one hand, and a Hillside Newsletter in the other, doing what I love - making a film - but this time, in the hope of landing a job I'd seen advertised at the Sanctuary. Working at an animal sanctuary would be great, I reasoned...

So, have the last two years been great? Well yes... but that wouldn't be the first word I would use to describe the enlightenment that has occurred during that time. I've seen many things - a few close to miracles, some heartwarming and many rewarding, but most of what I've seen has been a disturbing insight into what we generally call factory farming.

The suffering that goes on, every day and every night, in the massive sheds that imprison millions of poor, miserable animals, whose only release is likely to be an undignified, terrifying and painful death, all so that an ever more obese population can buy cheap and easy meals, is quite frankly, the great shame of the human race.

Seeing footage taken by an investigator only hours ago, and looking into the faces of ducks, turkeys, pigs and hens that are, right now, living in a nightmare. Seeing their eyes looking back at me through the lens and knowing they are stuck in that hell, that changes you. Wherever I may be in the next 5, 10 or 20 years, I know I won't be eating an animal. I won't be a part of that...

You'd think, or at least I thought, that such hell-holes would be the domain of the independent, poor and desperate farmer. I was shocked to find that, far too often, these places are overseen by companies who, unbelievably, proclaim themselves to be at the forefront of animal welfare! Names like Red Tractor and even the RSPCA's 'Freedom Food' are, all too often, seen on certificates that adorn walls of the farms which are hiding some of the worst of all suffering.

After being exposed in the press by Hillside these companies stop at nothing to limit the damage to themselves. The chain of events is depressingly familiar, rolling out statements such as - 'we are shocked' or 'we will investigate' and 'it was a one off' and even 'we will consider prosecuting'. So many words, but ultimately designed simply to buy time until the media interest has died down... and then it all starts again. The only improvements they make is in increased security, rather than animal welfare - they don't want us coming back...

Sometimes it's easy to get lost in all of this and forget that Hillside is also home to nearly 2000 rescued animals of all shapes and sizes; mostly from the farming industry. Every one of them safe at last. None of this could be done without the help of our supporters. Hillside doesn't have big corporate sponsors and we don't get funding or grants. Our support comes from everyday people who, like us, really care about animals and give what they can. Hillside is a place where small amounts, together, can make a big difference. It allows us to take in animals in desperate need of help and give them a life worth living. It means we can carry on campaigning against the suffering they endure.

Sometimes our funds do get perilously low. In February 2011 we were so far behind with our bills that our vet suggested we may need to put animals to sleep if there were no further funds to treat them. This, of course, we could not even consider and so we turned to our supporters who, once again, saw us through that very difficult time. However, the cause of the problem, high feed bills due to dry weather, remain, and we look towards another winter with great concern. During these times everyone at Hillside pulls together and every animal remains well fed and well looked after.

So, as I look back on 2 years working closely with Wendy at Hillside I can honestly say it's been an awakening! It has opened my eyes and constantly challenges and educates me. I hope we can do the same for others - because that's where the answer lies - that's how things can really change. If working for Hillside has taught me anything, it's that people really can make a difference... people like you!

Tragedy at a Local Sanctuary

Waiting for help... all now safe at Hillside

Tragic events at another Norfolk animal sanctuary last June, sadly left a man dead and a woman in custody, and no one remaining to look after the animals in their care. Following a request from the Police, we immediately responded and brought all the animals, including horses, dogs, cats, birds, rabbits and other mammals, to the safety of Hillside. These animals had obviously been well cared for and loved, and our hearts go out to those who have had to leave them behind. The horses and dogs above, are some of the 40 animals we have been able to take in and ensure sanctuary for the rest of their lives.

It is only through the kindness of those who support Hillside, that we were able to step in and help these animals in their hour of need...

Please consider a gift to Hillside by Standing Order . . .

rescues...

Rescued in the nick of time...

In February, a flock of sheep urgently needed our help when their ex-owner, who had been prosecuted and banned from keeping livestock, threatened to shoot them all. As Police took the man into custody, we rushed to their aid to bring the 75 sheep, most of them pregnant ewes, 200 miles to safety at Hillside. They arrived late in the evening. Some were in poor condition and none had received routine veterinary care which we provided on arrival. The ewes were all able to give birth safely.

Now safe - a newly born lamb with mum and aunty

Our sad loss...

In 2011 we had to sadly say goodbye to our beloved sheep, Starlight. This summer, having had the pleasure of her company for several years, on vet's advice Starlight was gently put to sleep for a tummy condition that couldn't be made better. For those people who have kindly supported her, Beauty, a young sheep rescued along with those above, will follow in Starlight's footsteps.

As a lamb, we found Starlight desperately trying to suckle from her dead mother.

On arrival, Beauty was so emaciated that she collapsed and had to be carried from the lorry bringing them. Below you can see her now doing well...

Dixie 1995 - 2011

We have lost our beloved Pixie. One day when he didn't seem his usual self, we called the vet who thought his time may be drawing near. He passed away peacefully soon after with his friends around him.

Pixie was a grand, kindly old gentleman who had been with us since Hillside was founded in March 1995. He came to us, pictured above, as a week old calf rescued from the dairy industry who would have ruthlessly disposed of him.

He came with Tinkerbelle who, although not his mother, looked after him like her own. Unfortunately, Tinkerbelle sadly died of BSE the following year. When Bluebell came to the Sanctuary in 1998, she immediately bonded with Pixie (left) and they became inseparable friends.

A foal is born...

Growing up, Moonbeam (in front) still close to mum and Aunt Bella. (left) Moonbeam as a foal last winter.

When we gave a home to Emma and Bella, two elderly ex-brood mares, there were no obvious signs that Emma was pregnant until she surprised us with a beautiful foal. She had been retired because she was thought to be barren. Ironically, she gave birth just after she and Bella had taken part in the nativity scene at our Christmas Fayre last November. We named the foal Moonbeam as he was born under the light of a full moon.

When Ruby injured her foot, damaging her hoof, she became unwanted. Because the injury had been neglected, her hoof became deformed leaving her no hope of finding somebody who would take her on - until we heard about her plight. With veterinary advice and careful trimming, her foot is gradually regaining its natural shape.

This horse, we've named Brian, came to us in a poor way. He arrived wearing shoes which suggested that he was still being ridden in this poor condition. His withers bear several scars from past saddle sores. He was on the way to the slaughterhouse when he was saved. After just a few weeks of food and care, he was soon looking and feeling a lot better.

Rescued from neglect...

Jessie, an elderly mare, came into our care in a neglected state. Underweight, she was rubbed raw in places with lice and was full of worms. Blind in one eye, she had been kept tethered and had recently had her foal taken away from her. After just a few days of receiving basic care her condition rapidly improved. She can now live out the autumn of her life safely in the Sanctuary. She is pictured below with some of her new friends at Hillside.

We must be able to continue helping animals like Jessie.

We gave sanctuary to these two young donkeys when their future became uncertain. This was probably because anybody taking them on would be faced with a veterinary bill of around £500 to have them gelded and provide them with necessary vaccinations. We have named them Noddy and Patch. I'm sure you'll know which one is which!

Recovered, Misty relaxing in her paddock

We were asked to help a young Dartmoor pony. Somebody had rescued her but then couldn't catch her to take off a tight headcollar embedded in her face. We acted quickly to bring Misty, with her companion, to Hillside and removed the offending collar, lodged half an inch into her nose which was becoming maggot infested. Unvaccinated, she was treated for possible tetanus. The owner decided they would be better off being with our other rescued moorland ponies and signed both ponies over to Hillside's care.

Sponsoring a dog helps to feed and care for a dog that has been with us long-term, either because a good home has not been forthcoming or they are unsuitable for the ordinary family environment and would require a special home.

This scheme is entirely separate from our usual 'Adopt a Rescued Animal' scheme and we are asking for a donation of your choice. If you choose to donate by Standing Order this would greatly help to reduce our admin costs.

We will 'introduce' your chosen dog with his story and picture with another photo to follow later in the year. We will also send you a keyring of him/her. If you would like to give this as a present to somebody at a different address, we will also send you the doggy details too.

Please note: If the dog you are helping is lucky enough to find a loving home, or sadly dies, we will automatically introduce you to another dog that needs your help. Thank you.

Dear Supporter...

A big thank you to everybody who has been supporting Hillside Dog Rescue since it was set up in March 2010 following our investigations into puppy farms. Our aim is to create awareness of the dreadful types of conditions in which these breeding dogs and puppies are kept and to encourage people to offer a home to a rescued dog, rather than buying a puppy from a breeder. With your help we have already been able to rehome hundreds of dogs with caring people.

Some dogs have come to us with temperament or health issues but we will not put any dog to sleep who is capable of enjoying a good quality of life. We are so grateful to a supporter who is funding the building of long-term accommodation to house around 12 rescued dogs. This will save them from spending too long in a kennel situation waiting for a family home that is unlikely to come their way.

I would also like to thank everyone who supported our recent 'Kennel Appeal' which is already enabling us to take more dogs in the Sanctuary, while saving funds previously spent on outside boarding kennels. I would also like to thank everybody who has adopted our dogs into loving homes.

Wendy Valentine

PS: We are so grateful to Breckland Dog Warden for offering us his former purpose-built 'animal ambulance' for the bargain price of £1000. This has not only been invaluable for transporting our rescued dogs but has also proved ideal to collect wildlife, particularly deer who have been injured in road accidents.

Mika's Story

Here's Mika, who Trading Standards seized after she was illegally imported from Poland. To save her from being put to sleep, Trading Standards asked for our help and we agreed to be responsible for her legally required six month quarantine. When she was released in February, we had a loving home waiting for her. A big thank you to everybody who helped support Mika through her time in quarantine.

To avoid further unnecessary breeding we ensure that all dogs coming into our care are neutered, vaccinated and micro-chipped, and we always carry out a home check.

1000's of healthy dogs are put to sleep in the UK every year through no fault of their own Rescued...

Earlier in the year we were inundated with reports of a pony in distress who was marooned alone on a flooded marsh on the outskirts of Norwich. 'Billy' had been left to fend for himself and had only managed to survive through the kindness of concerned passers-by who brought him food. Following the reports we were able to bring Billy back to 'dry land' at Hillside where he can now live out his days.

The following story was written by Ralf to highlight what happens to so many ponies like Billy...

Billy - his last day on a flooded marshland

Coming Home By Ralf Hoffmann

The cold, grey light of dawn signalled the end of another cold and lonely night for the tired old pony. He emerged from a draughty, ramshackle shelter and made his way stiffly across the frost rimed field. The water trough by the gate was mercifully self filling but, as he bent his head to drink, he found the surface frozen again. A brief search by the gate sometimes revealed scraps thrown over by well meaning people but the supply was often as unpredictable as it was unsuitable. He stood, for a while, looking over the gate but, seeing no one, made his way back across the field.

Hunger was his constant companion these days but the slowly rising sun began to drive away the chill from his bones, which brought some relief at least. As he stood dozing in the sunlight he looked a sorry sight indeed. His shaggy grey winter coat was filthy and matted and did much to conceal his emaciated frame. His mane and tail were in a similar condition and were tangled with briers and burrs. Looking at him now it was hard to imagine him as his younger self when he was the darling of the pony club. Then, his owner cosseted and petted him so that he was always immaculately turned out. He was a willing pony with a brave heart and always did his best, no matter what was asked of him. As such, he was always winning trophies and rosettes until the girl grew too tall to ride him and he was sold on.

During his life he had a succession of owners, some better than others, but, as he got older, he started to develop arthritis and became unable to go over the jumps easily. He finally ended up in a horse sale where he was bought cheaply by a rough family as their children's pony. They had very little idea how to look after him properly and he was just treated as their plaything with no concern for his well-being. Friends would call round and he would be ridden hard up and down a piece of waste land until they grew bored. He would then be taken back to a rough stable, thrown some food and left. At night his legs would ache so much he could hardly sleep but, fortunately for him, it would be several days before he would be required again.

Nobody knew where the pony in the field came from; he was simply abandoned one night and left with no one to care for him. And so it was that he awoke from his doze at the sound of a vehicle stopping by the gate. He saw someone climb over and softly whinnied a greeting in the hope that the approaching figure had some food. He saw a woman carrying a halter but, more importantly, she held an apple out for him. He gratefully bit into it as she slipped the halter over his head and started leading him towards the gate, all the while softly talking to him.

She opened the gate and led him to a waiting horse trailer which the tired old pony showed no reluctance in entering as it smelt comfortingly of horses and sweet hay. As she tied him securely and closed the ramp he was already pulling hay from a net. His teeth were not in good condition and he couldn't chew it properly but the taste was a delight in itself. The Land Rover and trailer moved off and he began what was to be his last journey.

After a while he felt the trailer slow and turn on to a farm track and he wondered what might lie ahead of him this time. Had he been able to recognize the sign which said 'Hillside Animal Sanctuary', he might have been more reassured. As it was, when the trailer finally stopped in a yard, the ramp lowered and he was led off, he heard the whinnying of other horses and ponies. He was led in to a clean, warm stable with fresh, clean bedding to lie on and a sweet smelling mash which he could manage to eat. As he put his head over the stable door he called to another pony across the yard and was immediately answered and he knew that, at long last, he had come home.

Behind closed doors...

When our investigator discovered these cattle living AND sleeping 24/7 in deep slurry (a mixture of faeces and urine), the farmer was clearly in breach of animal welfare legislation...

We immediately informed the RSPCA of the cattle's plight, confident that a prosecution would ensue. The Society's Inspector Kirby attended the farm and left us the following recorded message (... indicates unknown word):

'Hello Wendy, it's inspector Kirby from the RSPCA. I've just been out to go and have a look at that farm you told Mr Thompson about. I've spoken to the farmer, I've seen what he's got. I don't think there's anything down there that we'd get a ticket on suffering on at the moment if I'm brutally honest. In terms of its conditions, yeah I agree with you, they are very wet. He's in the process of shallow strawing them and apparently the first batch is supposed to be going out to pasture over the next couple of days as their... ..become available. He's going to scrape them out and... ..more room for them and have a rolling, a rolling cycle because it's going to take him about two weeks to get all those cattle off there and I'll keep coming back and paying him visits and checking that he's doing what he's promised me. And that's pretty much where we stand at the moment. Thanks very much for your call though, Wendy, appreciate it. Bye'

You can see a film of these cattle in our DVD 'A Year at Hillside 2011' (see back page)

Hens on the Happy Egg advert

When we were sent this picture (right) of hens that somebody had just 'rescued' from a Noble Foods' (owners of Happy Eggs) Freedom Food farm, we went to Lincolnshire to see for ourselves.

The scenes we found (below) certainly didn't compare to those shown on the 'Happy Egg' TV adverts. Most of the hens were suffering from acute feather loss and appeared in a poor state of health. The farmer volunteered that he had recently been visited by the RSPCA as part of their monitoring procedures and we hope they took appropriate action to improve the welfare of the birds.

PLEASE HELP REFORM LIVE FARM ANIMAL EXPORT LAWS

Please, please sign this e-petition to protest against, and help stop, the cruel export of live farm animals from British shores. It's not often that we ask our supporters to sign petitions, but this is a really important issue. If this Government-run petition site can attract 100,000 email signatures then the campaign is eligible to be debated in the House of Commons. This could bring more public awareness to the whole issue of factory farming and the animal suffering that it causes.

REFORM LIVE FARM ANIMAL EXPORT LAWS

Farm Staff Abuse Ducks Destined for Waitrose

Another Freedom

Earlier in the year, both Sky News and Channel 5 broadcast a Hillside investigation which uncovered evidence of free-range ducks being swung by their necks by farm workers.

Our secretly-filmed footage at Hall Farm in Hingham, Norfolk, showed frightened birds being herded into crates to be taken away for slaughter.

Workers are seen picking ducks up by their necks and swinging them before throwing them back into the flock (see pictures).

As well as sick and injured birds, we also discovered dead birds left to rot among the live ducks.

We found those that had been removed decomposing in a skip instead of being safely put in bags to avoid contamination.

Farm animal welfare expert Dr Marc Cooper said:

"Commercially reared meat ducks are flightless, heavy animals and handling them in this manner is likely to cause injury to their neck, legs and body. Throwing live ducks is incredibly inhumane and would most certainly have caused suffering through pain or injury to the birds. The footage shows unacceptable levels of lameness and injury in the flock. Birds that are ill or injured should receive veterinary attention or be humanely culled without delay. Dead birds, in a state of decomposition that haven't been removed, present a risk of disease to the living birds and is indicative of a lack of even the most basic level of stockmanship duties."

Hall Farm is contracted by producer Gressingham Foods (Green Label), who hired the workers.

Covered in faeces, an injured duck lies on the barn floor in a scene from the footage

The ducks are processed by Gressingham Foods then sold on the shelves of Waitrose as a high-welfare, free-range product.

Consumers pay a premium for free-range products in the belief the animals have been well looked after.

Hall Farm launched their own inquiry, saying: "We take matters of animal health and welfare very seriously and are extremely concerned by the footage we have been shown." Surely they knew what was going on on their own farm!!

Gressingham (Green Label) said they were upset by the film, and had suspended the farm workers. Yet, when the RSPCA was asked if a prosecution was forthcoming, they said they couldn't find out who the offending duck catchers were!! This was despite stating "This is absolutely shocking footage and the RSPCA has very serious concerns about the level of cruelty inflicted on these ducks. The footage shows appalling behaviour in regards to the catchers who are seen swinging live ducks by their necks and throwing them at other ducks. This is undoubtedly a criminal offence under the Animal Welfare Act (2006), which makes owners and keepers responsible for ensuring the welfare needs of their animals are met and that they are protected from pain, injury, suffering and disease." So who was paying the farm workers if nobody knew who they were??

Notice on Hall Farm's office wall warns staff of planned Waitrose 'visit' several weeks in advance of the inspection...

As this farm had a long-standing RSPCA Freedom Food accreditation, we were just concluding a year-long undercover documentary 'A Year of Life, Death and Suffering on a Freedom Food Duck Farm', when we encountered the barbaric scenes that were shown on Sky News.

A life of hell - the brown stuff ISN'T RSPCA 'monitored' farm were for their own faeces and urine 24/7 for until they are sent for slaughter.

With little space to move around, parents existing in a windowless space breathing in the overpowering ammonia...

The heavier, stronger males cause serious de-feathering and often damage the hens' backs with their claws.

Freedom Food Pig Farm Exposed

RSPCA monitored Freedom Food pig farm after a concerned member of the public asked us to report the farm to the RSPCA two weeks beforehand, but when nothing had improved for the Society when they were told to: 'Put their concerns in writing'.

In this farm after they were contacted by the People Newspaper who published a dreadful conditions we filmed there.

He said "I was appalled and saddened by the footage shown to me. That such unchecked is an indictment of our society. Is it any wonder that so many of us are outraged at the standards of decency when such things happen? This must stop in the name of kindness, morality, are contracted to 'look after' pigs for Easey Pigs Ltd who are suppliers of pork to Tesco. Laws have been blatantly broken on this farm and the RSPCA had every opportunity to gather evidence that there will be no prosecution. See page 15 for 'Welfare of Farmed Animals Regulations'. Pig carcasses which had been left close to the live pigs were not only in breach of health risk to all the animals and people living in the vicinity some of whom had the dreadful stench coming from the farm.

The People Sunday 18th September 2011

T mud - the pigs on this were forced to 'live' and sleep in this mud for around five months

A vet's report on our findings...

"I have seen the footage from Manor Farm, Yaxham filmed by Hillside Animal Sanctuary. One doesn't have to be a vet to be appalled and revolted by the scenes revealed therein. I practise mostly with small animals; if a dog was kept in conditions only 1/10 as horrible the RSPCA would, no doubt, be prosecuting the owner for cruelty. But for pigs, apparently, this passes as acceptable. Freedom Foods indeed! But Freedom from what exactly? From any shred of decent living it would seem.

The filth these poor creatures have to live their whole lives in is unimaginable (whereas if allowed anything approximating natural conditions these animals are cleaner than most). Thankfully the stench could only be inferred from the film rather than be endured as the pigs must every minute of every day; apart from being extremely uncomfortable this is also very damaging to the respiratory tract. The close proximity of the bins of dead bodies to the live pigs over an extended period - as evidenced by the thousands upon thousands of maggots - is a health hazard. Apart from these 'morgue' bins numerous dead or dying/distressed pigs are dotted amongst the group; this - and the sheer number of corpses- suggests very poor husbandry.

Both my parents were Holocaust survivors; this video is reminiscent of footage I have seen from the Nazi concentration and death camps. Even the epithet 'Freedom Foods' is as hollow as the slogan 'Arbeit Macht Frei' - Work Sets You Free - placed over the entrances to these camps."* Amir Kashiv MRCVS

The Plight of the Parent Birds

One aspect of factory farming often overlooked, is the suffering endured by the parent birds that annually produce the eggs from which over 800 million broiler chicks are hatched. These breeders are kept at roughly 9 hens to 1 cockerel. The heavier, stronger males cause serious de-feathering, often damaging the hens' skin with their claws during mating. The ammonia-ridden environment in these breeding units is intolerable for the birds who spend up to a year on the same, increasingly soiled litter until they are sent for slaughter.

Hillside investigated one such breeding unit operated by P D Hook, a company with RSPCA Freedom Food accreditation, that boasts a production of 5 million eggs every week.

On entering the unit, the air was unbearable. The volume of faeces can result in ammonia gas levels reaching damaging proportions and the readings in this unit ranged from 37 parts per million (ppm) to 38.6 ppm. EU law states that gas concentrations 'must be kept within limits which are not harmful to the animals'.

The 'safe' limit for exposure in young broilers throughout the EU has been set at 20 ppm. However, international research has found that levels as low as 10 ppm can damage birds' respiratory tracts, if, as with broiler breeders, exposure takes place over a long period of time.

Worryingly, levels of 25 ppm (much lower than those found here) have been found to damage birds' lungs and airsacs after only 48 hours.

When we informed the RSPCA of conditions on this site, they visited the same day. Shockingly they could find no welfare issues, despite the fact that every bird we had inspected was suffering with painful, infected, blistering feet, the Society's inspector reported finding only one cockerel with an infected toe. Later, on seeing our photos they said: "...the two birds with dirty feet would need further examination to determine the level of suffering and the appropriate treatment required."

'Dirty feet' - how the RSPCA described painful, infected, blistering feet!

A happy ending for one little hen

On seeing our footage clearly showing this hen struggling to walk with an obtrusive tumour, the RSPCA reported back: "The growth on the bird would need investigation to determine whether it was negatively affecting the bird's welfare." We removed the hen on welfare grounds and took her to a vet who successfully removed the lump. Below is the hen, fully recovered, with her new feathered friends...

RSPCA's Freedom Food Catalogue of Shame... 2000 - 2011

The farms here are those exposed by Hillside where conditions have been so bad that they have either been the subject of a high profile television programme or the RSPCA have been shamed into initiating a prosecution against the farmer (all of which we believe were deliberately engineered to fail). In addition to those shown here, we have looked at many other Freedom Food farms which also have serious welfare and even environmental issues.

Please note that all the farms we mention here, are situated in Norfolk. You may draw your own conclusions as to what conditions can be found across the country. Following our meeting with Mark Watts, Chief Executive RSPCA and Leigh Grant, Chief Executive Freedom Food, we felt compelled to write the following...

Dear Mark,

We write further to our meeting earlier this year with you and Leigh Grant (the fourth meeting we have had with top RSPCA officials since 2003), where you again asked that we contact you first when we find cruelty and suffering on Freedom Food (FF) farms. We have thought long and hard about your proposals and our decision is outlined in this letter. Actions speak louder than words and we still do not have the confidence or trust that you will bring to justice, any offending FF farmer that we bring to your attention, even after we provide indisputable evidence.

At the April meeting we asked how many FF farms the RSPCA had initiated prosecutions against based on its own evidence. This was to exclude the three farms that Hillside - and a high-profile TV programme - had shamed the Society into prosecuting, all of which I feel, were eventually engineered to fail.

This is an appalling record especially as you publicise that FF farms have regular unannounced inspections. In short, Hillside - with occasional visits in one county alone, have unearthed at least three prosecutable farms and yet, in FIFTEEN years, RSPCA/FF inspectors have only found another THREE in the whole of the UK!! This low figure indicates an unwillingness to prosecute your clients and a fear of drawing unwelcome attention to the inadequacies of Freedom Food monitoring. It seems that joining the FF scheme almost gives farmers immunity from prosecution.

So, in order to clarify, what you are asking of us is as follows: 'Please give us your evidence of illegal cruelty on FF farms that you come across BEFORE GOING TO THE MEDIA and we promise to do everything we can to bring a prosecution against the offending farmer and then you can have your story printed later in the press'. But, what you really mean is: 'Please give us your evidence and we'll tell you we'll look into it with a view to taking legal action which will then take months to investigate before we tell you 'Sorry, we were unable to take any action', by which time the story is old and the media isn't interested in exposing another FF farm!!'

You frequently criticise us (and other organisations) for not telling you sooner when we discover illegal suffering on FF farms, but in most cases, even though you visit them, very little actually happens to improve the ongoing conditions for the animals. When we have later revisited these sites, welfare conditions have usually lapsed again and often the only thing that has improved is the farms' security making it difficult for us to check on the animals.

Over the last ten years I think we have proved, beyond doubt, that you are deliberately turning a blind eye to farms operating illegally under your supposedly 'high welfare' scheme by regularly contravening animal welfare laws and in turn causing much unnecessary suffering to farmed animals. To repeat what we have said before 'we have looked at over 30 FF farms and 10 - a third of them - have either been the subject of a high-profile television programme and/or a prosecution.' Only recently we have taken footage of totally unacceptable conditions on three further FF farms in different counties and fully intend to expose them - because you certainly won't.

Your other excuses have been that the welfare standards on which the FF scheme is based, are aspirational but I believe that consumers buying FF produce expect the animal produce they are paying a high premium for, has been reared in a welfare friendly environment, not one which just 'aspires' to be!! Our investigations have highlighted the fact that many FF farmers have no interest in animal welfare but are simply trying to cash in on the monetary benefits that joining the scheme brings - the extra profit they can charge for their produce.

It was clear from the April meeting that you are so focussed on increasing the number of farms in your FF scheme that it has become wildly out of control. This has left literally a handful of inspectors trying to monitor thousands of farms. Surely the amount of farms in the scheme should be limited to the amount that can be properly inspected to ensure that your promised standards are upheld. It seems that the few FF inspectors that are available don't appear to be very well organised. On your own website your Field Officer, Reg Battershall, says "...I may be in the Orkneys one week and on the south coast of England the next". This doesn't seem a very efficient way of checking the thousands of FF sites spread across the country.

I hope this letter explains our reasons for not accepting your invitation to help you cover up the appalling state of many of your FF farms. It saddens us that we have had to come to this decision. If circumstances change, we would be proud to work with an organisation that could, in the right hands, be effective for the animals. In fact, nothing would please us more. Animals desperately need the RSPCA but under the right stewardship. Wendy Valentine

Where have all the birds gone!!

17 Million Wild Birds are killed and eaten in Italy every year...

Ornithologists in the UK have discovered that between 20-30% of Blackbirds and Song

Thrushes visiting British gardens are Northern European birds passing through to Southern Europe for the winter. Consequently hundreds of thousands of the birds we love to feed could end up being fed upon by Italian hunters!

The Facts:

*Each year the Italian Government Issue licences both to catch and shoot millions of birds.

*Hunters are obsessed with hunting; it's a complete way of life. To be in the Italian countryside from October to March is like being in a war zone. One is surrounded by continuous gunfire.

*Poachers: To add to their plight, birds of all species are illegally trapped by any method possible: sticky birdlime placed in trees to immobilise them, spring traps, nets, mouse traps - in fact any device that will work is used.

*Killing migratory songbirds in Italy has been a long tradition going back to the Roman Empire.

Many birds are caught alive. Their sole purpose is to lure their own kind to a fate worse than death. Once caught in the kilometre long three-metre high mist nets, their free life is over, spending the rest of their entire lives (up to fifteen years) in cages barely larger than themselves. Kept in total darkness during the spring and summer and then brought out to sing when the artificial light tricked them to think it was springtime.

This entices their own species down to join them, only to be either shot or caught to become decoys. Hillside is again joining forces with Terry Spamer (Ruadan Investigations) and LUSH (natural cosmetics) to bring this totally unnecessary cruel practice to an end by:

- *Obtaining evidence to highlight the cruelty involved
- *Putting pressure on the Italian government to withdraw licences from trapping sites and individual hunters
- *Legally challenging the Italian government for not abiding by the EU Bird Directive to protect vulnerable migratory species
- *Gaining public support in Italy, UK, and Scandinavia
- *Training Italian voluntary wildlife guards in covert surveillance tactics to catch wildlife criminals

Successful prosecutions

Puppy Farming - In 2011, the owner of a Welsh puppy breeding farm that we uncovered in 2009, while assisting Channel 5 investigate the conditions in which breeding bitches and puppies were being kept in, has been prosecuted and banned from keeping animals.

It was on this farm that we found Susie, one of around 50 bitches being 'farmed' in cramped dark pens, their only purpose to produce litters to provide profit for their unscrupulous, uncaring owner. For the C5 programme, we filmed the dogs, some blind, living confined, in stinking wet conditions. It also transpired that the farm didn't have the necessary dog breeding licence but following the C5 programme, and additional evidence provided by our investigator, the owner was successfully prosecuted for this and neglect of the animals. The judge also ordered that the remainder of the dogs be rehomed and the puppy farm was eventually closed down. Susie is available to be sponsored at Hillside- please see page 10.

Illegal Slaughter

In 2003 when Hillside's investigator provided evidence which led to a successful prosecution for the illegal slaughter of sheep and goats, the offender, Michael Hawkswell was imprisoned and banned from keeping animals.

Despite this, Hawkswell continued his barbaric trade in animals. As a result, Yorkshire Trading Standards and Police asked us to take thirteen goats, some pregnant, into our care to save them from further neglect and a grisly end. When Trading Standards' officials visited Hawkswell's premises they found livestock being kept in 'squalid and dangerous conditions'. They reported: 'The animals were being kept in an environment that was unsuitable to meet their needs and not provided with sufficient feed and water to satisfy their daily well-being'. In 2011, Hawkswell was again imprisoned and banned from keeping animals for a further 10 years.

The goats we took in from this case gave birth to 10 kids so in total that's 23 lives spared from a cruel end.

'Farm Animal Investigation Appeal'

Hillside has had much success in bringing to the public's attention the cruelty involved in today's intensive factory farming systems. Not only have we gained the confidence of television documentary producers who regularly broadcast our evidence, we also distribute thousands of free 'Farm Animal Investigation' DVDs and videos so that people can see for themselves just what is going on behind the closed doors of the farming industry. The "Bernard Matthews' turkey beaters" was one of Hillside's investigations and programmes such as ITV1's 'Tonight with Trevor McDonald', BBC's 'Watchdog' and C4's 'Dispatches' have all featured Hillside's footage. We feel that our ongoing undercover operations which expose battery hen farms, appalling sheep 'welfare' and other atrocities in the farming industry are vitally important. If you would like to contribute towards funding this work, please make a donation to our 'Farm Animal Investigation Appeal' on the back page. Thank you.

Rescued donkeys arrive safely...

Following our appeal last winter to save seven donkeys, including a mare and foal, in desperate need of sanctuary, we are pleased to let you know that they all arrived safely at Hillside and to thank everybody who donated to help them.

Happy to be together - rescued mother and baby...

Inseparable friends -enjoying grazing out in the paddock...

Our supporters named the donkeys: Happy, Sleepy, Bashful, Doc, Sneezzy, Dopey and Emily. We couldn't possibly have called any one of them 'Grumpy' as they all seemed so contented following their rescue!

Safe at last - the first of seven rescued donkeys arriving at the Sanctuary, urgently in need of routine veterinary care and a farrier...

wildlife rescues...

We went to the aid of this goose with fishing line embedded deeply in her leg. With the help of the Harbour Master at Oulton Broad who kindly took us out in his boat, we eventually managed to catch the injured bird. She was given veterinary treatment and after a few days observation, we were able to release her back into the wild to rejoin her mate who immediately swam over to greet her.

You can see a film of this rescue and release, in our DVD 'A Year at Hillside 2011' available on back page...

These five ducklings were brought to us after being found in the road, next to their dead mother, who sadly had been run over by a car. We had never seen such striking plumage and were interested to discover they are Shelducks, a breed that haven't been seen on our ponds before!

This muntjac fawn was safely born at the Sanctuary after her mother was brought to us having been hit by a car. Mum and fawn are doing well. We now have around 20 rescued deer living safely in the Sanctuary...

This swan became so entangled in fishing line that it almost severed her leg. If we had not been alerted and able to go to her rescue it is highly unlikely that she would have survived. During delicate veterinary treatment, we were able to cut free the offending line and once the leg showed signs of recovery, let her swim in a pond. We were thrilled to see her obvious delight at being back in the water.

Oh! that looks a bit prickly! Red spots a rescued hedgehog...

Black Beauty by Anna Sewell

During the summer months, some Hillside horses spend their days grazing in a meadow neighbouring the estate where Anna Sewell, author of Black Beauty, often stayed with her uncle and close to where she is buried. Anna Sewell, back in the mid Victorian period was, in her own way, a campaigner for animal welfare and was very much a 'local girl'. We hope that, if Anna had still been alive today, she would be pleased to know that Hillside Animal Sanctuary is located so close to her. To celebrate the life of Anna Sewell we are pleased to offer the Wordsworth edition of her book 'Black Beauty'. A lovely gift for any young person who has not yet had the chance to read it...

(Paperback edition) £2.50

Bea relaxing with her companion, Daisy, by the sea at Hillside Shire Horse Sanctuary at West Runton

We were pleased to be able to give Bea a home at Hillside...

Bea, who came to us when her owner could no longer look after her, now lives at our Sanctuary at West Runton, helping the disabled. We are pleased to work with the RDA by providing a therapeutic facility in the area for the benefit of disabled adults and children. The RDA, who has a dedicated team of volunteers to assist and lead the horses, feels the experience that the individuals gain through contact with horses and ponies, creates a greater sense of achievement and confidence. This in turn makes their lives easier and more fulfilled. Our horses and ponies who are not otherwise ridden, are pleased to help such a worthy cause.

Hillside Holidays by the Sea

When we took over our Sanctuary at West Runton in 2008, we turned the residential property into holiday homes to raise valuable funds to help feed and care for our rescued animals.

If you would like to take a self-catering holiday on the North Norfolk coast, surrounded by our rescued animals, our accommodation offers a very special holiday location for our supporters.

If this appeals to you, please write or phone 01603 736200 for further details including dates available and tariffs or visit www.hillside.org.uk

Hillside Gold, Foreign Coin & Mobile Phone Appeal

To raise funds we are always very grateful to receive items of scrap or broken gold jewellery.

If you have just come back from a foreign holiday with a pocketful of loose change or notes you don't know what to do with, these too can help us to feed and care for our rescued animals.

We would also be grateful to receive clean sheets and towelling to use for our animals.

Please send us your used printer cartridges with a copper strip as these can be recycled to raise £1 each for Hillside!

We can even raise £3 each from your old Mobile Phones - please send them to us!! Thank you.

Have you moved?

If you have moved please be sure to let us know your NEW address as well as your OLD address.

Also, please let us know if any other Hillside supporters at your address have also moved. Thank you.

A Legacy for Life

If you would like to secure Hillside's future, helping and campaigning for animals in need, please consider a legacy to Hillside Animal Sanctuary, so that your ideals may continue to live on through our work.

Thank you for caring saved from an untimely end . . .

Our local connections with Anna Sewell, authoress of Black Beauty, seem even more significant since we have rescued our own Black Beauty. 'Bogar', pictured here on arrival, was born in Hungary and was brought to England to pull a funeral carriage. When he developed a slight lameness, he became unwanted and was on a 'one way ticket' to the slaughterhouse - until we intercepted and rescued him.
